

BANKERS PLANNING BIG ATHLETIC CLUB

Membership Will Represent a Billion, if Idea Is Carried Out.

HOME HIGH IN THE AIR

Health preferred is the newest stock offered for listing on the Stock Exchange. With all the excitement over "war brides," great industrial combinations and a bull market, the men behind them have taken a breathing spell and have said something about organizing a health corporation.

That fact became apparent yesterday with rumors concerning the organization of a Bankers Athletic Club, which probably will occupy about 6,000 square feet on the eighteenth floor of the new Equitable Building. If the reports are true, it is to be the wealthiest athletic organization in the world.

Means Greater Energy.

Wall Street believes in annihilating time and space, for by that method more gold coins drop into the coffers. The big bankers of the Street realize that health contributes to brain power and energy, both essential for fighting the bears and the bulls.

So they have hit on a scheme by which it will take just one minute from the counting room to an athletic field where a game of golf, a game of basketball, a game of tennis, a game of football, a game of baseball, a game of hockey, or even a snap of trout rod on a warmer, may furnish amusement and relaxation from the game of dollars and the struggle over stocks and bonds.

With this idea in view, Thomas Cochran, president of the Liberty National Bank, has been buttonholing his friends at luncheon and asking, "How about an athletic club downtown where we can get a little exercise before dinner?"

The idea seems to have caught the fancy of the big men of the street who are inclined to athletics and while no club has been formally organized, it was admitted yesterday that the project was in the air. Mr. Cochran refused to discuss the club yesterday.

Harvey D. Gibson, vice-president of the bank, said that really nothing had been settled, no lease for the rooms had been taken or no charter for a club had been sought.

Many Widely Known Men in It.

It was reported, however, that J. P. Morgan is keen on having a place where he can get a game of squash before going uptown. Col. Coleman du Pont, owner of the controlling stock in the Equitable Life Assurance Society, is interested in the plan. Albert H. Wiggin, president of the Chase National Bank, has promised to contribute to the project. Mr. Morgan's partners are said to be interested in the project. George B. Case, of White & Case, lawyers, is not adverse to a game of golf.

While the bankers declined to give details of the projected athletic club, it was learned that the tenants on one wing of the eighteenth floor of the Equitable Building have given up their lease and have agreed to take other quarters if the project goes through.

The plan is to build the most elaborate, though by no means the largest, athletic rooms in the country. Courts for squash, basketball and other games will be added to the gymnasium, which will be installed. There are any gymnasts among the bankers there will be parallel bars, horizontal bars and tumbling racks.

There will be an athletic instructor on hand, and perhaps opportunity will be arranged for bankers who like to put on the gloves for a friendly bout as a means of disposing of the stress and from the excitement of the stock market.

The membership is to be limited. The initiation fee is $200, the dues are $200 a year.

MOOSE TIE: ONE VOTE EACH.

12th District Progressives Must Decide on Candidate.

In the primary of September 28 only two Progressive votes were cast for Aldermanic candidates in the Twelfth district. William D. Kennedy, Charles F. Murphy's candidate, got one of them. Michael Bowen, another Democrat, the other.

There being a tie, the Board of Elections solemnly notified the Progressive organization that it may be sent to the polls that it would have to indicate whether it wanted the name of Kennedy or of Bowen on the ballot as the choice of the Progressives. So there was a special meeting to-morrow of the members of the Progressive county committee in the Twelfth district.

The Progressives designated no Aldermanic candidate in the Twelfth, but acting leader Edward S. Van Zile wrote Kennedy's name on the ballot on primary day in letters so as to give regularity. He doesn't know who voted for Bowen.

NOT AFTER MARSHALL'S SCALP.

White House Says Wilson Never Discussed Vice-Presidency.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—In commenting on the gossip in circulation that Wilson Democrats do not want Thomas Riley Marshall for Vice-President in 1916, and are looking for another candidate, it was said at the White House today that "the President has never discussed the Vice-Presidency with anybody."

To this it was added that the relations between the President and Mr. Marshall are of the most pleasant and intimate character.

It has been plain that President Wilson himself has not been indulging in talk about the Vice-Presidency, but the fact is that several influential Democrats, especially members of the Senate, have been suggesting the likelihood of some other running mate for Wilson in 1916.

DEMAND $1,000 FROM DOCTOR.

Black Handers Are Rewarded With Package of Papers.

Two so-called Black Hand letters came to Dr. Jacob Lachowski of 1155 Washington Avenue, The Bronx, one being received July 14 last and the second on Monday. Both letters said that if the doctor placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue between 180th and 181st streets his thirteen-year-old daughter, Mary, would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

Dr. Lachowski turned the second letter over to the police, who placed a package stuffed with old newspapers under the rock yesterday. Last night, as Detectives Di Gilio and Battio lay in hiding, a fourteen-year-old boy went to the rock and looked under it. He was arrested and taken to the Children's society, where he said he was Louis Giordano, a thirteen-year-old boy who had been told by an old man that if he placed $1,000 under a certain rock in Mapee avenue his daughter would be kidnapped and killed.

THOMPSON COMMITTEE BOASTS, BUT NO GAME

Public Service Investigators Uncertain What They Might Do, but Chairman Had Hopes World's Series Would Help Keep Them Busy.

HOME HIGH IN THE AIR

The Thompson committee of the New York Legislature moved its headquarters to Massachusetts last night—from the Baltimore room to the Touraine in Boston. There it will continue its investigation of New York's Public Service Commission, with special reference to an alleged yellow dog fund tucked away in an Interborough third tracking contract.

Senator Thompson and his fellow tourists departed at 5 o'clock as scheduled, although the news of the Phillies' final defeat spoiling the prospect of another game in Boston this afternoon was broken to them much earlier.

Means Greater Energy.

The committee went to Boston because the executives under the will of chairman M. Lane, who was an Interborough director, declined to come to New York or to send papers belonging to the estate. About two weeks ago William A. Read, formerly a director of the Interborough, testified one of the committee's hearings here that he and Mr. Lane in 1913 visited J. P. Morgan with the hope of getting his help in killing John P. Morgan, who was a director of the Interborough. The committee suspects that there was to be a secret rebate to reimburse the Interborough for the loss of a suit for purposes not disclosed.

A SUN reporter who has been trying to follow the peregrinations of the Thompson committee, expected to find in Boston, where Deputy Attorney-General Merton E. Lewis, the committee's counsel, has been sleuthing for several days.

Trip a Blind One.

"Well," said the Senator, "I don't know. Our attention was called to this matter of Mr. Read and Mr. Lane and we think there may be letters or other papers left by Mr. Lane that will enlighten us further about the Interborough contract. It is our duty to go to Boston and find out. We'll be glad if we find something and if we don't." The Senator agreed that the procedure was unusual. He was asked how the New York committee expected to enforce its New York authority in Massachusetts. He replied:

"I guess we could get the Massachusetts authorities to cooperate with us if necessary. We haven't subpoenaed anybody in Boston. We shall go to the Touraine and ask the executives, who I understand, are Mr. Gardner and Charles Cotton, to let us examine the documents in their possession."

"By the way," said the reporter, "they're playing the seventh inning in Philadelphia, but the Phillies are leading, 4 to 2."

"Means Another Game."

"You don't say! That means there'll be another game, doesn't it?"

"Yes, if Philadelphia stays in front."

"Where will it be played?"

"Boston."

"That's what I thought. Some of the boys were trying to tell me it would be in Philadelphia, but I thought they were wrong."

"You rather expected there would be a game in Boston to-morrow when you decided to go there?"

"Well, it looks now as if there will be."

"Fine. That will give us something to do anyway." But said of the trip to Boston, the world series is ended, although the Thompson committee is in Boston.

The Senator said he didn't know for sure whether the suspected yellow dog fund really existed.

"But we've got to find out," he added. "We're in the position of the up-State boys who caught the tail. We can't let go with this thing. Personally I don't like the way you New Yorkers do business. We really don't know what they know about the matters we're interested in."

The committee returned to New York in August it had about $15,000 of its appropriation left. Mr. Thompson said about $2,000 or $3,000 of this has been spent.

VILLA TO SEIZE RICH COUZENS WILL STAY

GUGGENHEIM MINES AS A FORD DIRECTOR

Quits Active Management—Books Show $59,135,770 Surplus, $43,788,151 Cash.

DETROIT, Oct. 13.—At a meeting of the directors of the Ford Motor Company today the resignation of James Couzens, vice-president and general manager of the company, was accepted.

Frank L. Klingensmith, secretary, succeeds Mr. Couzens, and Edsel B. Ford, president, succeeds Mr. Klingensmith.

The annual financial statement of the company approved today shows a surplus of $59,135,770 and a cash balance of $43,788,151.

The statement, which was issued after the signature of James Couzens, is for the year ended July 31, the fiscal year having been changed so as to end on that date instead of September 10.

Among the assets of the company in addition to the money on hand and in banks all over the world, list buildings and building fixtures worth $12,931,884; merchandise, worth $14,335,767; real estate, worth $4,947,802; in the form of equipment, $2,606,256; machinery, $2,692,648; and a few items like $1,311,224 worth of Michigan municipal bonds and $1,418,000 of United States bonds.

The one big item of liability in addition to the record breaking surplus is one of $15,000,000 as reserve for profit earnings and the purchase of Ford cars.

The only other big item which gives an idea of the immensity of the company's business is that of accounts payable, which is $14,335,767.

Answering critics who berated him for statements that the commissioners sent here to protect the country from the Panama-Pacific Exposition said:

"It happened that the war loan was being sought by the Allies. I was opposed to it, not because it was for the Allies but because I thought that it hindered the country's progress."

"I am sorry that the impression has been given to Canadians that I am opposing them in particular. It seems to me that the plain duty of the United States is to help the Allies, but I am neither for the Germans nor the Allies, but for peace."

EDISON OFF FOR EXPOSITION.

Regrets He'll Be Unable to Vote for Suffrage.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 13.—Thomas A. Edison, accompanied by Mrs. Edison and their son Charles and Thelma, will leave to-morrow night for San Francisco to be present at the celebration of Edison Day at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, October 21. Mr. Edison expressed regret that he will be unable to vote for the suffrage amendment next Tuesday.

"Certainly I am in favor of giving woman the right to vote," he said. "The inventor's enthusiasm is believed to be due in part to the success of the West Coast States in passing the amendment in its effort to beautify the town. I hired the first street cleaning force in West Orange and has inaugurated rapid campaigns. Edison is proud of the organization."

THE CZAR WILL HAVE TO WAIT

Subject So Eager to See Him Well That Arrested Here.

Frank Zelasky, a Russian, 19, of 534 West Thirty-third street, has had several letters from the Czar of Russia inviting him to join the army. Up to last night Zelasky could not accept the invitation for the purely feminine reason that he was not a man.

Last night he got the clothes. He also was arrested by Policeman McManus, charged with violating the Sullivan law.

Zelasky, according to the story told the lieutenant at the West Thirty-seventh street station, received his last letter from the Czar a day or so ago. It informed him that if he didn't come at once he need not come at all. He was thinking of the letter and his need of present money when he was arrested. Fox & Davis's clothing store at 534 Seventh avenue. There were fine suits in the window and he paused to look at them.

Harry Bergman, a clerk in the store, saw him at the window and ran out and pulled him in bodily. Zelasky became enraged when he was arrested and refused to go. He was taken to the station and held for a while. He was then released.

The Romanovs have been married six months. The wife of the Czar, Alexandra, is a Russian. She was married to the Czar in 1904. She is a very beautiful woman. She is a very good mother. She is a very good wife. She is a very good daughter. She is a very good sister. She is a very good friend. She is a very good neighbor. She is a very good citizen. She is a very good woman.

The Romanovs have been married six months. The wife of the Czar, Alexandra, is a Russian. She was married to the Czar in 1904. She is a very beautiful woman. She is a very good mother. She is a very good wife. She is a very good daughter. She is a very good sister. She is a very good friend. She is a very good neighbor. She is a very good citizen. She is a very good woman.

The Romanovs have been married six months. The wife of the Czar, Alexandra, is a Russian. She was married to the Czar in 1904. She is a very beautiful woman. She is a very good mother. She is a very good wife. She is a very good daughter. She is a very good sister. She is a very good friend. She is a very good neighbor. She is a very good citizen. She is a very good woman.

The Romanovs have been married six months. The wife of the Czar, Alexandra, is a Russian. She was married to the Czar in 1904. She is a very beautiful woman. She is a very good mother. She is a very good wife. She is a very good daughter. She is a very good sister. She is a very good friend. She is a very good neighbor. She is a very good citizen. She is a very good woman.

The Romanovs have been married six months. The wife of the Czar, Alexandra, is a Russian. She was married to the Czar in 1904. She is a very beautiful woman. She is a very good mother. She is a very good wife. She is a very good daughter. She is a very good sister. She is a very good friend. She is a very good neighbor. She is a very good citizen. She is a very good woman.

The Romanovs have been married six months. The wife of the Czar, Alexandra, is a Russian. She was married to the Czar in 1904. She is a very beautiful woman. She is a very good mother. She is a very good wife. She is a very good daughter. She is a very good sister. She is a very good friend. She is a very good neighbor. She is a very good citizen. She is a very good woman.

The Romanovs have been married six months. The wife of the Czar, Alexandra, is a Russian. She was married to the Czar in 1904. She is a very beautiful woman. She is a very good mother. She is a very good wife. She is a very good daughter. She is a very good sister. She is a very good friend. She is a very good neighbor. She is a very good citizen. She is a very good woman.

The Romanovs have been married six months. The wife of the Czar, Alexandra, is a Russian. She was married to the Czar in 1904. She is a very beautiful woman. She is a very good mother. She is a very good wife. She is a very good daughter. She is a very good sister. She is a very good friend. She is a very good neighbor. She is a very good citizen. She is a very good woman.

The Romanovs have been married six months. The wife of the Czar, Alexandra, is a Russian. She was married to the Czar in 1904. She is a very beautiful woman. She is a very good mother. She is a very good wife. She is a very good daughter. She is a very good sister. She is a very good friend. She is a very good neighbor. She is a very good citizen. She is a very good woman.

The Romanovs have been married six months. The wife of the Czar, Alexandra, is a Russian. She was married to the Czar in 1904. She is a very beautiful woman. She is a very good mother. She is a very good wife. She is a very good daughter. She is a very good sister. She is a very good friend. She is a very good neighbor. She is a very good citizen. She is a very good woman.

The Romanovs have been married six months. The wife of the Czar, Alexandra, is a Russian. She was married to the Czar in 1904. She is a very beautiful woman. She is a very good mother. She is a very good wife. She is a very good daughter. She is a very good sister. She is a very good friend. She is a very good neighbor. She is a very good citizen. She is a very good woman.

The Romanovs have been married six months. The wife of the Czar, Alexandra, is a Russian. She was married to the Czar in 1904. She is a very beautiful woman. She is a very good mother. She is a very good wife. She is a very good daughter. She is a very good sister. She is a very good friend. She is a very good neighbor. She is a very good citizen. She is a very good woman.

TIGER BOU TO BEAT I. N. SELIGMAN FOR WIDE INCOME TAX

Banker Tells Mills Committee It Should Supersede Personal Property Plan.

BECOMING A PARTY ISSUE

A resolution asking all Democrats to vote against the new State Constitution will be placed before a mass meeting in Tammany Hall to-morrow night. It has been prepared by Tammany men and its passage is predicted. The purpose of the meeting is "ratification" of the Democratic primary results. Candidates from all parts of the State have been invited.

Tammany has thus far taken no official action regarding the Constitution, but it looks as if an attempt to defeat it will be made party policy, just as the Republican State and county committees have made the adoption of the Constitution a party measure.

All the Tammany campaign speakers were instructed last night by the speakers' committee of the organization, of which John W. Keller is chairman, to assign against the new Constitution. The committee is to be submitted to the voters separately. This article provides that no county shall have more than one-third of the Senators and that no county shall have more than one-third of the Representatives. The committee is to be submitted to the voters separately. This article provides that no county shall have more than one-third of the Senators and that no county shall have more than one-third of the Representatives.

Curious Effects of Tax.

"The imposition of the personal property tax—